

Civil Defence Emergency Management

In the event of a civil defence emergency, each individual household and the wider community need to action their own preparedness plans. Individuals and organisations must monitor any developing situation by listening to local radio.

Civil Defence and Emergency Management (CDEM) is the responsibility of the local council. Up-to-date information for households and workplaces relating to Civil Defence can be found at the Civil Defence website which also has links to your local council information.

Blockhouse Bay Primary School makes every effort to work cooperatively with Civil Defence authorities, recognising that disaster could strike at any time, and that systems must be in place for such events. Blockhouse Bay Primary School has emergency planning procedures and an emergency kit for managing emergencies during the school day.

Blockhouse Bay Primary School may be used as an emergency facility by members of the local community if a situation develops.
